	Announced by state Finance Minister Chandrima Bhattacharjee during the state Budget in February, the scheme's modalities were subsequently framed and notified. <ul style="list-style-type: none">• The 'Samudra Sathi' scheme offers financial assistance of Rs 5,000 per month for two months to each registered fisherman in the coastal districts. The state has allocated Rs 200 crore for this initiative, aiming to support approximately 200,000 fishermen.• Additionally, under the Pradhan Mantri Matsya Sampada Yojana (PMMSY), the Centre provides Rs 4,500 (Rs 1,500 each for three months) to fishermen during bans or lean seasons. However, the PMMSY requires beneficiaries to contribute Rs 1,500 to receive the full amount. In contrast, the state's scheme provides a total assistance of Rs 10,000 (Rs 5,000 for two months) without requiring any payment from the fishermen.
Cultivation of macadamia nuts	Context: <ul style="list-style-type: none">• The University of North Bengal's Centre for Floriculture and Agri-Business Management (COFAM) department has cultivated macadamia nuts in the hills as a new farming opportunity. Key points: <ul style="list-style-type: none">• This initiative aims to involve a new generation in farming, reviving traditional agricultural practices. Previously, the university has successfully introduced strawberries, potatoes, and orchids.• COFAM hopes to reignite interest in farming among the younger generation by introducing new and potentially profitable crops like macadamia nuts.

- Macadamia nuts, alongside hazelnuts, almonds, and walnuts, are already cultivated in regions like Kashmir, Kerala, Tamil Nadu, and Pune. However, this is the first instance of macadamia nut cultivation in the Darjeeling hills, where the temperature often stays below 30 degrees Celsius, making it ideal for this crop.
- Macadamia trees take about four years to bear fruit.
